Most of you have seen pictures of the brand new duos and trios. I'm trying to decide whether they will become favorites or if I will just pass. I use my trios for all the same stuff I do with my trombone — I play in different bands; I play in church; I play in a couple of bands that just had duos and are having trouble making ends meet because I'm the best. My lessons are in a duet with my brother. My method books are printed in duet because he likes my part. And our repertoire includes everything from Gershwin to Jacovelli to Beethoven. We can play Moonlight Sonata; we can play Beethoven's Fifth; we can play a song we both really like; we can work on a complicated part and have a whole hour in which I probably will make some progress; I'll play for a couple of songs; we can play something that looks easy to me, but that he'll laugh at; we play a Jacovelli and I hit a killer, a monster of a note he doesn't know how to play; he plays something I do know how to play, and he hit a few notes not in the lesson book; we can play Bach's B-flat Fugue and I will probably make a bunch of mistakes. I like to say that it's like the difference between a good teacher and an average teacher. The average teacher will say, "Well, take a lesson, you'll get better." The good teacher looks at the student and says, "Well, why don't you do this yourself?" That's how I look at the duos. I can't afford to buy every book that's out there, and I'm not going to try to buy one. I can't sit down with all this stuff and spend five hours of my life with it, when I could spend the same amount of time and just play a little bit and figure it out and do it myself and play it a hundred times.The Blues claimed a 2-1 victory thanks to an Oscar Cazorla opener in the closing stages before second-half goals from Chris Wood and Nahki Wells saw them secure their first trip to the Champions League this season. The win took them second

Thymic carcinoma with epithelial-lined cyst features: a rare entity and better prognosis than non-epithelial type thymic carcinoma. Thymic epithelial neoplasm with cystic features is rare and has been often mistaken for benign cystic lesions. We herein report the clinicopathological characteristics of six patients who were diagnosed as having thymic epithelial neoplasm with cystic features by thyroid ultrasonography and fine-needle aspiration cytology. The diagnosis was supported by the presence of cystic and/or cyst-like spaces within the thymus and/or small nests of epithelial cells on histological examination. Among them, two patients were initially diagnosed as having thymoma or cyst adenoma on preoperative imaging studies and had experienced multiple recurrences and malignant transformation after partial thymectomy. Clinical follow-up of the other four patients with epithelial-lined cyst showed better outcome with a relatively long survival (76-112months), compared to the patients with non-epithelial thymic carcinoma. The absence of medullary differentiation and the negativity for chromogranin and synaptophysin immunohistochemical stains were helpful in distinguishing this entity from thymoma. These findings confirm that thymic carcinoma with epithelial-lined cystic features has a better prognosis than non-epithelial thymic carcinoma. Malignant thymoma can be distinguished from thymic epithelial neoplasm with cystic features by the absence of medullary differentiation and the negativity for chromogranin and synaptophysin immunohistochemical stains. Our observations suggest that partial thymectomy is recommended for epithelial-lined cyst cases and radiotherapy should be chosen for the other patients.Q: How to find the shortest route out of two locations? I'm writing a program to find the shortest route out of two locations. A passenger is at a location that is connected to 5 different cities, and he needs to leave these cities. Using the chart below, I have to find the shortest route that leaves this location and returns to the capital. I'm using Google's Directions API, but it's not the shortest possible route, for example, if there are three routes out of this city and the one with a higher cost is the shortest, it doesn't return it. Is there any good way to find this shortest route?
