FIFA is a critically acclaimed series of sports video games developed by EA Canada and published by EA Sports. First released for the Nintendo Entertainment System in 1989, the series has spawned several sequels, as well as several iterations of the popular FIFA Ultimate Team mode. The core gameplay of FIFA is presented through a series of human-controlled matches between the members of a team, with on-screen control of skill, tactics, movement, and other elements. The most recent version of the game, FIFA 20, was released on October 27, 2019. Some important features of FIFA include the ability to control your on-field players in every mode, create a club-unique team of players through the FIFA Ultimate Team mode, play the game on up to 8 players simultaneously through EA SPORTS PlayerLink or through the game's online modes, and compete in the FIFA World Cup, organized by the National Sports Association governing bodies of each participating country. Want to test your football skills without spending real money? Beat your Friends' Favorites leaderboards as well as other players in the popular Online Seasons, Online Leagues, and Online Cups. What is FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT)? FIFA Ultimate Team is a mode in the EA SPORTS FIFA games in which you can collect players from around the world and build teams. To play FUT, you must earn FIFA Points by earning experience through playing matches or by spending real money. You can earn Points by winning matches, using your teammates, and accomplishing FUT challenges. These challenges include using your teammates to score the most goals or avoid conceding the most goals, earning 10,000 FUT points with a save, completing a FUT challenge, and completing a FUT tournament. You can unlock players' costumes and emblems by earning Coins, a collectible currency earned by completing challenges and participating in FUT challenges (for more information about Coins and the FUT system, see the section below). Players earn a percentage of Coins for completing challenges and goals. Coins can be used to purchase packs of players, adding more or better players to your team. Your team's overall performance is rated on your leaderboards and you can be compared to other players and your team's overall performance for the season. How to play • Challenge friends and opponents to a match. You can choose to play a Ranked match or Create a Game. • Watch a tutorial that teaches you the core controls of FIFA.

Q: Powershell if modify array or copy array? I have an if statement as follows: If the number of zones in a specified IP range is greater than 1, then use a range of 1 to 2 to set the Rule Group: Subnet. If the number of zones in a specified IP range is 1, then the Rule Group: Subnet should be Subnet. If the number of zones in a specified IP range is 0, then the Rule Group: Subnet should be Unmanaged. If I have the following array, is there any downside to using Add-Member -InputObject $IpArray -Type Name -Value $RulesGroup -MemberType ScriptMethod -Force To modify the array? Or could I just do a copy of the array and modify that? A: It really depends on the script that you're writing. If you're modifying an array, then you'd want to use a `foreach($array in $IpArray) { $array.`
