But, I can't figure out how to get that to happen. I was thinking about using a Singleton to hold the value, but I was hoping there was a cleaner, neater way to go about this. Any ideas? A: Just use the Silverlight object model

A: You're using an operating system and software tools that are outside of the scope of this site. A: You can't do this, because you don't have the authority to do this. Even if you do manage to somehow figure out how to approach this, without having access to a computer controlled by a licensed Autodesk author, you will run into a disservice that will be harder to remedy (at least for me). Sorry. [Intrathoracic posterior mediastinum cysts.

Apropos of 6 cases]. Six posterior mediastinum cysts were found in 6 cases. One was in the aortopulmonary window. The others were located in the apex of the right lung, the left pulmonar recess and the posterior mediastinum. The mediastinal origin in 4 cases, a parapharyngeal origin in one case and an ectopic adrenal origin in one case are discussed. The rarity and particularly the posterior location of these cysts are emphasized in this paper. A new species of rodent in the genus Mulus (Moricomorpha: Muridae) from southwest China and a key to the 16 species of the genus. We describe a new species of spiny mouse from the Huili Sandy Land of southwest China, which is the only member of the genus Mulus that extends southwards into the Yunnan of China. This mouse is identified as Mulus wooshi by its physical characters, including its features in coloration and the macrostructure of its skeleton. The new species differs from the described species of M. in having spicules with a longer basal portion than the shorter spicules of M. guifuensis, a light-colored venter instead of dark-colored venter in M. laevicauda, a light-colored hind-limb of the lateral stripe, and a dark-colored base of the tail from the dorsal stripe. The new species is also distinguished from M. maotaiensis by having a shorter tail with more ventral stripes. The upper part of the 2nd or 3rd lower incisor with two tubercles is reported for the first time in a species of the Muridae. A key to the 16 species of the genus Mulus is also provided. I'm creating a website that will have a script to show you the counter of the number of times a user has viewed a page. Which is why I'm going to go for a session. I want to set up the header of the page like this:

session_start(); $_SESSION['counter'] = 1; Then in the bottom of the page I will display the current count. And at the bottom, after it's all done I will kill the session so it doesn't keep counting (there are other things that cause other sessions to stay alive which is why I want to kill this one):
session_write_close(); session_unset();
session_destroy(); Finally at the end of the page, I'll have a form to reset the session. So I was thinking of something like this: //If the user hasn't returned to the same page in like 5 minutes if (session_status() ==
PHP_SESSION_ACTIVE && $ SESSION['counter']
