"This is a simple, but extremely valuable application for Windows. If you wish to remove all instances of a program, without knowing anything about its location, then this is the program for you. It works... "This is the ideal Uninstaller for beginners, as well as advanced users. You can delete programs or programs with registry keys without knowing where the programs are installed. It is also... "The program works very well. I have Windows XP and the Uninstaller worked very well. I am using it to remove programs and the registry clean up is very good. The buttons are good and it...New regulations proposed by IRS would change your 529 plan. The federal government is preparing new rules for 529 plan investments. These proposed changes would be in the form of private placements, and would not impact basic income tax rebates available to individuals for qualified education expenses. Private placements could be much more risky than the current investments available. Investors will have a limited amount of time to react. Could a new investment option in your 529 plan increase the risk you're willing to take on? Expanding Your 529s Options For years now, your investments in your 529 plan have always been safe, stable, and protected by a federal guarantee. That's why your current investment options available are as valuable to you and your family as the money in your bank account. But if the federal government's plan to change 529 investment options goes through, investors should consider the potential risks of private placements, and how that could impact their savings plans. Investments in 529 plans and education savings accounts are generally safe and stable because of the federal government's financial protection. Your 529 plan investments are insured through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). Investments in your 529 plan are protected by the federal government's guarantee. A 529 plan can offer a state-by-state (and sometimes a district-by-district) portfolio of stocks and bonds. Because the government (and, by extension, taxpayers) guarantee investments in your 529
