Deborah Sundahl Kobieca ejakulacja i punkt G.Q: Angular 7 : NgFor only updating the last children elements
I have a list of products that is being generated via Angular's ngFor. All products are structured like this: product1 - details - product2 - details - product3 - product4 You can also see this in this Plunker. The issue is that when the user opens a product, and then closes it, the product will still be open (i.e. it's being shown). However when you update the product's details, the previous product's details won't be updated.
I've tried iterating backwards through the products, but since this is coming from the database and there can be thousands of products, it doesn't work. I'm using Angular 6, and data is stored in a Firebase Database. A: I've figure a way to solve this. Not sure if it's the best way, but here's what I did: I made a new function that is outside of the ngFor loop. This is the function: `updateChild(currentObject, newObject, key) { this.transactionsArray.forEach((data, i) => { data.indexOf(key) > -1 && (data.children[i].id === currentObject.id)? data.children[i].id = newObject.id : data.children[i] = newObject; }) }` Then I made a component template like this: `{{product.id}} {{i}}`
