In my mapping I have a model something like this... public class TestModel { public virtual int Id { get; set; } public virtual string Name { get; set; } public virtual IList Entities { get; set; } public virtual bool Processed { get; set; } public virtual bool Thawed { get; set; } } } I want the ability to save TestModel with all values (including the Id of TestModel) but ignore the values of some columns. In my example the entity TestEntity may have a column id or column status. I want to be able to ignore these columns and just save an instance of TestModel without the id or column status from TestEntity. Is it possible to do this? Update Thanks to c-tor I came up with the following: ISessionFactory sf = Fluently.Configure().BuildSessionFactory(); ISession session = sf.OpenSession(); TestModel m1 = new TestModel() { Name = "TestModel", Entities = new List(){ new TestEntity(){ Id = 1,

As is well known, bimodal polyolefin products, such as high-density polyethylene (HDPE), low-density polyethylene (LDPE) and linear low-density polyethylene (LLDPE), are sometimes produced by polymerizing monomers at two or more reactor sites or reactor sites at two or more polymerization zones. One polymerization zone is operated at a relatively low temperature, and the other is operated at a relatively high temperature. For example, such processes are carried out in a continuous polymerization process that includes a pre-polymerization zone for polymerizing monomers to produce monomer-derived polymer (pre-polymer), a gas phase reactor zone (e.g., two or more reactor vessels) and a liquid phase reactor zone. A product stream that includes pre-polymer is fed to the gas phase reactor zone where polymerization is initiated and carried out, and then to a product tank where unreacted monomers, low molecular weight polymer (i.e., low molecular weight polymer that has not yet been separated from the product stream) and entrained gas are separated from the product stream. Low molecular weight polymer that has been polymerized in the gas phase reactor is fed to the liquid phase reactor zone where polymerization is completed and the unreacted 3e33713323
