Blanks works her way through this personal relation, demonstrating a smooth jazz sway without a hint of self-consciousness. I felt compelled to visit the set of Rachel's album, since the songs are reminiscent of a time when pop music was rather charming. At times, it just comes off like a "hey, look at this beautiful person" song. "Me and My Shadow" has one of the most pretty vocal performances I've heard in a while, but the message is not as strong as the song. "Love Me", which should be a massive hit, is rather limiting and hardly overcomes a simplistic message. "We Disappear" and "Saturn" are a little more ambitious. "Saturn", in particular, has a sort of 70's new wave atmosphere, with a driving beat and vivid
