Matrix 7.10, with the latest version of free updates, 8.0, on September 21, 2017. New updated features: New MagicSet Counter design lines (e.g. Non-stop-shipping (for more than 1 year). Beginning September 21, 2017, support expired for Matrix 7.8 Update 9 and earlier. Cytologic diagnosis of intraepithelial lymphocytosis in the bronchus-associated lymphoid tissue. Bronchial mucosa specimens from 35 patients (21 men, 14 women; age range, 19 to 77 years) were examined by means of a combination of cytologic and histologic preparations in order to establish a diagnostic correlation. All but two had a clinical indication for bronchoscopy, including four cases of lung cancer, four cases of bronchitis, and eight cases of chronic nonspecific lung disease. The bronchial mucosa specimens revealed a normocellular reactive hyperplasia with increased lymphocytes due to an increased number of small lymphocytes. There were more mature lymphocytes than appeared to be present in an ordinary lymphocyte differential count. Cytopathologists must be aware of a specific form of reactive lymphocytosis, which seems to be increasingly seen in association with inflammatory and malignant diseases of the lung and should be distinguished from reactive lymphocytosis in other sites of the body. Q: Why do you usually use `self` to refer to a class instance? I'd like to know why is it the common practice to refer to a class instance using the name self. For example, in the Decorator Pattern: class IsValidDecorator(Base): def decorate(self, target): print("yay") and in a class attribute: class ABC(object): @IsValidDecorator def decorate(self, target): print("wow") Why do you not just call the method directly as: @ABC.decorate(target) and class ABC(object): @IsValidDecorator.decorate(target) def decorate(self, target): print("wow") A: It's because the decorator pattern is really useful when you

Q: getting error in firebase cloud functions const functions = require('firebase-functions'); exports.login_check = functions.auth.user().onCreate(snapshot => { console.log("hello world"); console.log(snapshot.name); console.log(snapshot.email); return (snapshot); }); I'm getting the error TypeError: snapshot.name is undefined What am I doing wrong? A: The onCreate() function is expecting a snapshot containing the name and email of the user who just signed in. const functions = require('firebase-functions'); exports.login_check = functions.auth.user().onCreate(snapshot => { const name = snapshot.name; const email = snapshot.email; return (snapshot); }); It sounds like you want to know the name and email for the user who is currently signed in, not a new user. For that, you would use the onConnect() function: const functions = require('firebase-functions'); exports.login_check = functions.auth.onConnect(snap 3da54e8ca3
