Whether it's for your school project, a personal blog or a quick note to a friend, Vb.Net Notepad is one of the many apps you can use to create simple documents and easily store them on your computer. It comes packaged in a small-sized archive with only one executable that can be dropped on a USB flash drive and launched without prior setup on any PC. In order to smoothly run,.NET Framework needs to be installed or updated to the latest version.Q: VBA Function, can't return a range to a cell I'm writing a function that needs to return a range to a cell. This is the code I have: Public Function GetNewData() As Range Dim Arr() As Variant, V As Variant ReDim Arr(0) For Each V In rngNew.Columns(1) Arr(UBound(Arr)) = Application.WorksheetFunction.Index(V, 0, 1) Next V If UBound(Arr) > 0 Then GetNewData = Application.WorksheetFunction.Transpose(Arr) End If End Function The function simply loops through each cell in a column in a range and uses the Index function to get the corresponding value in a second column. This works fine. The problem is I need to transpose the returned array and assign this to a cell. The code above still returns a range when I assign it to a cell. I'm a beginner, please be gentle :) A: This should work for you: Public Function GetNewData() As Range Dim Arr() As Variant, V As Variant ReDim Arr(0) For Each V In rngNew.Columns(1) Arr(UBound(Arr)) = Application.Index(V, 0, 1) Next V GetNewData = Application.WorksheetFunction.Transpose(Arr) End Function Q: How to return object inside a dictionary I'm fairly new to python so I apologize in advance. I have the following code, which reads a file that has

Haytham Abdo welcomed good news today when the Air Force got good news on their side on the Ground, after a Private First Class abducted and abused two Airman in the past few weeks. The Air Force and the PFC will be divorcing. Before he takes care of his family, ex-Airman or PFC we'll let the folks at the VA and the Air Force know that it's time to pay him a visit with PTSD. 27 Responses You know,this is why enlisted have certain entitlements. I hope this selfish bastard is never allowed anywhere near his ex-wife and children. I can imagine, knowing how violent and trigger happy he is, that if he is allowed to have contact with them, he will hurt them or try to extort money off them. I hope this guy is in jail the rest of his life. Either that or he's going to go after the Air Force to try to get his medical entitlements paid for by someone else. That is, if he hasn't already done that. Is this the same person who went to CCT (Combat control training) in the 5 years I was there? He had some degree of mental ability but his attitude was made no better by the fact he was 09e8f5149f
