Apropos of 45 consecutive cases]. The creation of an arteriotomy during vascular intervention exposes the patient to a number of risks, and the reported probability of thromboembolic complications ranges from 0.3 to 1.6%. However, the use of a closure device seems to be an interesting alternative in selected cases. The aim of the study was to assess the safety and efficacy of the Viabahn in 45 consecutive cases. Forty-five patients undergoing femoral or popliteal artery revascularisation for arterial occlusive disease were included. The popliteal artery was crossed by a 8F or 10F sheath. At the beginning of the procedure, a

0.018-in. wire was inserted into the artery via the 10F sheath. When opening the artery, the guide wire was removed. After that, an endoprosthesis was inserted over a snare and pushed through the artery by a delivery system. There were 2 early failures, both due to unsatisfactory quality of the device. The mean follow-up was 8.8 months. All patients underwent follow-up angiography. The two devices were patent and the artery was satisfactorily sealed in all cases. The mean diameter of the vessels was 6.4 +/- 0.7 mm. The rate of minor complications was 12% and major complications were 3.3% (one major amputation of the lower limb). The patency rates were: 88% at 6 months, 81% at 12 months and 71% at 24 months. The presence of diabetes was significantly related to major complications and delayed patency rates. The three cases of major complications were due to two highly atherosclerotic and occluded vessels and one completely occluded vessel. The use of the Viabahn device is safe and enables satisfactory seal. The presence of diabetes and previous revascularisation surgery are high risk factors for major complications. The study was performed under angiographic control with 0cc13bf012

(WPRI) – A seasoned police officer will oversee the implementation of a new police department policy aimed at ending police brutality and excessive force. Rob Bouchard, a 15-year veteran of the department, will serve as the new chief of police. He is expected to take up his post in mid-September. "He is someone who has zero tolerance for police brutality," Commissioner Steven M. Parziale said at a press conference Wednesday. "He has excellent leadership skills." Parziale said Bouchard understands the value of the police force – and what it represents. "He knows how to bring in the new and make the old feel welcome," Parziale said

I have a parent with its own class and a child window (the parent is the child class's parent). I have to develop a function in the parent class that, when invoked, causes the window to be repainted (re-handle its WM_PAINT message) - the window is child of the parent, the parent is parent of child... I want to avoid a big switch statement to call the same function on the child window to change its text color in its WM_PAINT... Is there a way to use a function and reference the child window? LRESULT __stdcall EditComboBox::RepaintChild(HWND child) { // Some code } Thanks for your time and help. A: You can use a loop to iterate the child controls of each parent's parent window. The aetiology of sick sinus syndrome. Sick sinus syndrome is thought to be caused by multiple factors. These may include autonomic dysfunction, cardiomyopathy, fibrosis, small atrial tissue volume, and impaired atrial conduction. All those causing sick sinus syndrome will be considered here. Studies have shown a prevalence of 2-11% for the condition and a median age of 72 years. Possible aetiologies of sick sinus syndrome include: 1) the slow coronary sinus causing a slow atrial activation; 2) fibrosis of the sinus node and the sinus node artery; 3) microvascular ischaemia; and 4) autonomic dysfunction.SACRAMENTO (CBS SF) — The man who killed four people in 2014 with a van in Sacramento, California, is pleading guilty to 29 counts stemming from his parole violation case. The case against David Paul Schoenfeld of North Hollywood has been kept under wraps by his lawyer, but the case will be made public Tuesday. Evidence against Schoenfeld shows he intentionally crashed his van into a crowd of people on San Mateo County's I-580 Highway last year, causing the deaths of four women and grave injuries to two more. "His whole world shattered. He was a new dad and
