In the internet, it can mean "an over-protective or affectionate older sibling of an adolescent or younger child".[2] The term also sometimes refers to a self-proclaimed "big brother/sister" or "little parent". Many "yokagai" (Japanese: yokagai 義理) also believe that by providing care to their yokagai, the father/mother of the yokagai will be blessed with an abundant supply of money to spend on the kids' entertainment and education. It is a common belief among Japanese yokagai that any relationship forged

This can be anything from mini-plasma grenades to an atmosphere grenade, or rocket launchers. Every gun has different usage and pros and cons as the guns fall into 3 different categories: AA, attack, and dual shock guns. These three categories can be played in 6 different modes each providing a very different gameplay experience, and a greater difficulty and challenge. In this video, I give a run down on the various modes, guns, and dual shocks available for Geometry Wars 2 and show you how to fire the weapon without any running. ----- If you see me around, you'll find me at my twitch.tv channel where I make games, do unboxing/tech videos and make vlogs than go over all the current events in gaming. -- Dope Kid Games: -- My Website: -- Twitter: -- Facebook: -- Discord: -- Reddit: -- iTunes: -- YouTube:

7 - The North Raptor I spy Charlie's WindFury, and as you know stealth is mostly about spotting people who are better at being stealthy than you are. They can spot you. But they can't spot you if you're flying through the warehouse with an ammo can.

So we head for the next target, and this is the ideal Shipwrecks for banditos. It's a sort of minefield. A gas-fired improvised explosive device (IED) factory. There's little point in driving anything other than for-reals-serious trash through this place - the factory is a last resort for cleaning up downed vehicles, and machines like the one we're using to smoke these guys probably run hot, so they're rigged with explosives. We take advantage of the setup, and drive up close, using the explosions to our advantage. But we also lose advantage when we park over the road. Far enough that I can't make the sickly sweet chiming sound of proximity mine detonation when the mines explode within a few meters. None of our ships has been fitted with a midships cargo shuttle hanger so we need to take the road here. We have to fall back to a distance from the front of the factory before we leave the protection of the bright yellow shipping containers that house the IEDs. One of our helicopters takes shots at our vehicles during the run there, but our lead bewnets make it through without significant damage. As we approach, we make a decision to go in. The factory is split into four sections, each featuring a shipping container loading area, a different factory section. The way the containers are bolted to the deck I'd rather have a shelter in these waves than be out in the open among them. Sectors 1, 2, and 4 don't have vehicles in position yet, but Personnel Recovery (PR) has already fired a rocket towards the trucks on the shipping container loading area of 3. With the exception of the two bulldozers (they're inconspicuous) the trucks are bobbing unhappily in their container homes, waiting to be delivered. It's relatively easy to slip onto the section, even with a few of us in the open. Probably by now we've made good enough progress that no one will notice just how many of us we're bringing. PR shoots its flaming missiles at the next wave of trucks that the bandits (I refer to them as bandits due to their irregular truck,

Sixteen people were charged for the cattle incident on April 7 in a farm in Kempton Park, near the club's Loftus Versfeld training ground. The AWB said on Friday that prosecuting was a lengthy process and had the potential to be "difficult". "It's never been their intention to appeal the verdicts," AWB communications executive Mikayi Zuma said. "The magistrate should have taken into account that they were farmers whose livelihood depended on animals." Supporters of the farmers argued that they were attacked and needed to defend themselves, even though some players admitted hitting the cow with sticks. Rangers' Victor Sabella was the most notable of the Kaizer Chiefs players accused of the attack. The front-foot soldier, who played alongside his brother, Natan, at Kaizer Chiefs, was the only player to be suspended after he confessed to the attack and explained that he had kept the cows' pen for his animal friends. The AWB wanted them to be referred to as "calves", as is being done in South Africa. Vee Risdon, president of the AWB, said the organisation was in talks with the players and the court to find
