Sep 14, 2017 · Roland is in the business of making electronic musical instruments, and more recently they have branched out into robotics and automobiles to further enhance their already strong lineup of synthesizers. The company was founded as Roland Brothers in the year 1873. First introduced in 1972, Roland is now one of the world's leading manufacturers of electronic musical instruments, and is the world's largest manufacturer of electronic musical instruments, controlling a 75% share in the market. Roland was the first company to introduce a metronome into the home in 1873. Their first electronic instruments sold for around 1,000 and they would go on to make instruments of very high quality over the next century. In 2015, the piano division of Roland was merged with the Korg Pianos division, and the company continues to manufacture and sell new products under the Roland and Korg brands, as well as Roland's other previously discontinued brands. Roland pianos can be found in some of the most famous and prestigious public venues, including Carnegie Hall, the Kennedy Center and the White House. Get the right piano or amp for your home and hear the music you can't get on a computer. Q: Typo3: Displaying single custom repeater field on a custom template? I have a repeater field that I'm pulling some data from a custom extension. 0 mylabel 1 1 In my custom template, how can I display the field? I have tried (and it doesn't even work). I've also tried And None work. I can get it to display if I make it a simple f:debug(), but I'm not sure what the syntax is for repeater fields. A: Your f:form is wrong. Use: Note that the number is the value you want to display, the index is only the label and depending on the label in a multiple value field the index will be in the first list item. The label always has to be 648931e174
