I know you can get 100s of VPS' for the same price as a single virtual machine host, but I am assuming that there is a big difference. I am asking this because I have seen that virtualization is becoming more and more popular and we have a lot of VPS providers offering it. I am trying to make sure that the virtualization I am doing is not serving me better with something else. A: It's very valuable if you're running your own private servers, mainly to make sure that the hardware is still working properly - you can check this by loading an ISO and giving a
