Ries (crater) Ries is a lunar impact crater that is located beyond the northwest limb of the Moon. It was identified during the 1960s by radar astronomer G.I. Kichigin from the Sirene radar at the Odesskaya Station near Sosnovy Bor. The crater is from the Pre-Nectarian period, and the rim has been heavily eroded by subsequent impacts. The outer rim of the crater is sharp-edged and rises to an altitude of about 3 km. This outer rim has been sliced by numerous small craters, the most recent being a crater designated Ries H. Among these small craters are D'Espagnat located in the eastern part of the outer rim, and Gale that is located just west of Ries. Satellite craters By convention these features are identified on lunar maps by placing the letter on the side of the crater midpoint that is closest to Ries. "Neon Chrome" is a point and click / bitmap adventure game, set in a world where cyberpunk style technology has transformed the surface of Earth into an advanced humanoid society, where danger has finally reached it's peak, and where the only thing left for humanity is to be placed in a vast prison complex known as 'Chrome City'. In this city, the lower classes live in slavery and the upper classes live a life of luxurious leisure, on the ultimate high-tech pleasure planet, much to the chagrin of the 'Elite' hackers who work for the protection of the human race. When a criminal by the name of 'Neon Chrome' breaks the security of Chrome City and gains access to all of its systems, the entire cyber-age world is plunged into chaos. Neon Chrome, who is actually a woman, has the ability to hack and control all the city's high-tech implants, and it is up to you, as a Hacker Elite, to stop her from doing so. is upset that London will not get a chance to vote in the next United Kingdom general election scheduled for 2020. According to the Jumper, a three-year-old Yorkshire terrier, London will get another chance in 2024. "We have our eyes on you, London," Jumper says. Lionly Sir Michael C. Mone vs. Bullshitter Robert Bourne Lionly Sir Michael C. Mone defends the Sun's decision to set a series of articles on burning buildings in London on fire as more important than covering his impending death. "Look, I am a real boy!" Lionly says, "It's just a shot of journalistic street cred!" Bullshitter Robert Bourne demands that Lionly explain why Britain is not going to experience another term in power under his leadership in 2020. "Look, I am the real head of the tabloids," Lionly says. "The Sun and a naked woman are all the same to me." Sheepdog Convenes Ecumenical Summit The president of the conservative Anglican Society, Sheepdog, has invited all of the major religions to attend a summit in London to consider how Britain's politicians can persuade the middle classes to embrace spiritual parochialism and embrace more free market solutions. "We can't allow the Christians and the Muslims to get their own way. My understanding is that both of them will be leaving town in 2020," Sheepdog adds. Meanwhile, President of the atheist Humanism UK, Harpy, declares that the summit is just a ploy to kill four years off the 2020 election cycle and is still worried that some of the major world religions might, in fact, win out. Jumper Jape is off the Tabloids After a long period recovering from anal surgery, Jumper has decided to come out of retirement as the cartoonist of the View from Up Here. His work receives a congratulatory note from Jumper Jape, who noticed that the Jumper recently joined Twitter. Jumper is unaware that a parody account named "Jumper Jape" already exists. Sheepdog Convenes Third International Conference on Consciousness Sheepdog proposes to stage its third International Conference on Consciousness in London in 2020. All religions and relevant experts are invited to participate. Arch
