From 4Gamer: "In the world of Mirror World, there are two groups who are locked in eternal battle: humans and orcs. For some reason, the two have different worldviews, but the humans want to draw closer to the orcs by any means. There was a time when a young human man named Kaidel, was born into a high-ranked Elven family. Since he was born into an elven family, he does not have the blood of an elf. He is basically what humans would call a "monster" and he was raised into an elite lifestyle that can only be achieved by having the blood of Elves. Kaidel was given the gift of becoming an elf and changed his name from Kaidel to "Tarnished". He started his journey as a dark elf, a kind of elf that was thought to be non-existent. In order to reach his destiny, he had to enter a type of RPG where he could make his own choices. Tarnished has now returned to the Mirror World, and has reached a new era." GameSpot: "Tarnished's world is vast, with vast, varied dungeons awaiting you." Destructoid: "Tarnished's story as a whole is a very good one, and it manages to create an experience that feels like it has depth, without being forced." GameChronicle: "A typical fantasy RPG's standard and every NPC is engaging and makes you want to find out more about them. It is a good universe to dive into if you enjoy very rich RPGs." GameSpy: "The game is filled with a personality and charm that is surprising for an RPG." GamingLatino: "With a very powerful battle system as well as challenging gameplay, you will not get bored with Tarnished anytime soon." Diehard GameFAN: "Tarnished is an interesting action RPG with a few good ideas, despite the lack of polish in the graphics." IGN: "Tarnished is a classic game that mixes traditional RPG combat mechanics with a narrative that's all its own." GameZone: "Tarnished is a great attempt at a new type of game" Slugonaut: "While it does occasionally try to mix genres, at its heart it's a traditional, linear, beat-'em-up RPG with a good lighthearted story." * A vast world full of excitement * Create your own character * A multilayered story told in fragments * An epic drama born from a myth * Unique online play that loosely connects you to others Register here: heteroaggregate pH-responsive contrast agent: dynamic nuclear polarization (DNP) and MRI applications. The permeability and retention effect is a vital property of nanoparticles that can be used for drug delivery. In this paper, we report the synthesis and characterization of the tumor targeting nanoparticles (NPs) that respond in a pH-responsive manner, enabling them to accumulate at tumor sites. The pH-responsive NPs are composed of gadolinium oxide (Gd<sup>2</sup>O<sup>3</sup>) NPs and sodium deoxycholate (NaDC) molecules. The Gd<sup>2</sup>O<sup>3</sup> NPs act as a pH reporter moiety, whereas NaDC molecules can be used as a response layer. The pH-responsive NPs function by accumulating at the tumor sites when pH is lower than 6.8. Under these conditions, NaDC molecules can form a supramolecular structure that covers the surface of Gd<sup>2</sup>O<sup>3</sup> NPs, providing a porous structure. The localization of the NPs can be monitored by dynamic nuclear polarization (DNP) MRI and confirmed by fluorescence microscopy. The accumulations of the heteroaggregate NPs are 1.8-2.1 times higher than those of conventional Gd<sup>2</sup>O<sup>3</sup> nanoparticles. The tumor imaging efficiencies of the heteroaggregate NPs can be enhanced by pretreating with the folic acid receptor-targeting antibody, using a two-step reaction between folate molecules and the amine groups of the antibody. In addition, a gradient of Gd concentrations can be achieved in tumors by varying the ratio of heteroaggregate nanoparticles. The heteroaggregate NPs may be useful for tumor-specific drug delivery and targeted MRI.Q: CoreBluetooth: problem with differentiating between device and service There is a problem. I'm trying to get the device value of a peripheral. I read that I have to perform a service discovery and ask the discovery queue for a CBPeripheral object. But once I have the object I can't get access to the services array on it

What's new in Elden Ring:

From the example above, it seems Dragon Nest is a RTS game, but with a unique, turn-based combat system. In addition to a RTS game, it has MMORPG, fantasy themed images. Does a campaign-like game included in the latter genre--a fantasy-based RTS-->? To answer this question, I ask my friend who made the game for a clarification. He explains that it is a fantasy themed MMORPG of the RTS genre. In addition, as of later, it is going to support a "Campaign" mode--a story progression system where each player advances the story and develops a specific character. Your decisions influence the story and can impact the life of the entire Kingdom. In addition, the experience of each scenario takes about an hour. (For the "Campaign Mode" information, please see below [TBD].)

It's called the "Calculate Upgrade" feature and, as mentioned, it's all thanks to a recent community improvement on the software development side. When I say "community improvement" I mean "Carlos Bernas created an application which can help users upgrade their builds and resolve the normal "out of date" error message that a number of developers on the community have been complaining about. With that being said, this blog post is going to be talking about a better way to build your own mortgage application, and show you how easy it is to get started with the free Calculate application. Screenshot of Calculate If you'd like, you can try calculating your finances right now and play around with it. Alternatively, you can check out the source to see what is going on. If you do go this route, I suggest you start by going to the "Calculate Upgrade" feature, which you can find at the bottom of the screen on the left side.
