Not only is it the only time of year where I get to spend a lot of time with my family and friends, but the real star of the holiday season is Calendula, a beautiful plant I come across and name every year. I happen to grow one quite prolifically. I let it get to a foot in height, then watch it only get taller and taller. As the year ends, I celebrate how it goes from a tender clump in my front yard to this towering and bursting with flowers potted plant. With gardening and cooking on our minds, we planted a few Calendula last Spring in containers on the front steps and porch. I bring it inside and put it in a place of honor in the living room. I often purchase other fresh flowers in the weeks before Calendula flowers, just so I can have Calendula during the holidays. It is a beautiful plant that makes for a lovely, easy way to brighten up the front of your house. I have a pretty nice collection of Calendula-themed stamps, including the one pictured here. I went looking for something simple to use this year. My recent Diecut Couture kit from Lawn Fawn called Christmas Joy had a cute Snowman design on the Perfect Polka Dots set of stamps. I was drawn to the idea of a snowman, which felt like a funny one to get a cute design from. I wanted my set to be festive for the holidays, so I kept the theme subtle with the funky scarf, ribbon and buttons. I stamped the snowman on 4x4 matte using Tea for Two. I wanted to give him a couple holly leaves added to the stumps of his arms. Garden Crafts Paper Stackers Don't they make beautiful gift packaging? The MFT die cutter was the easy backdrop for adding a few details. I stamped the sentiment in Staz On Brilliance, then added a little sparkle to his hat using Stickers. Here I added a little more sparkle to his knit scarf. I used Lemon Lime Twist dye ink, and stamped on Beechwood Streetpaper. I then added color with the Making Memories Metallic Crafters 6d1f23a050
