You should also be aware that torrents are not a backup mechanism. If your system crashes or has a power outage, you could lose the entire contents of your hard drive. If you want backup, you can use a disk, tape, or a DVD. If you want a data backup, use a data storage server. It'll be safer than having all your important data on your computer. If you are an experienced user, you may want to run your own tracker. For the inexperienced, there are free trackers available on the net. When you download a file or torrent, it's important to remember the system it's on and the bandwidth you're using. If you are using a peer-to-peer network (like KaZaA or a file sharing network), your file will travel through a huge number of computers; as a result, you could drop out of the network and never get your file. If you are using a tracker, a much smaller pool of computers will share the file. They use an automatic system to share files and automatically reserve the bandwidth needed to download the file. Start Small you can start small with the services of by using an online libraries to download and have a very instant access to all of your favorite books without paying any membership. The only difference is in the case of the library is the way the books are stored and retrievable. Instead of taking up a lot of room on your local PC in your room which you find it less convenient or old fashioned in the case of online libraries which can be accessed from any corner of the globe. In addition to this one can even transfer a book to a Kindle and can read it on your mobile.
