Generator! FULL!

The eLicenser will be activated by a physical USB eLicenser. This means that you cannot use a Soft Licenser. Once the device is properly activated, you will receive an email with the activation code. The email may be generated after the initial activation of the Soft eLicenser or it may take up to 24 hours. You can view the license file on your computer to see if the code has been generated. In order to activate the product, you must use the activation code from this email to activate the license via Steinbergs website. Inside the email is the activation code you need. This number is required to be entered into the activation page on the program's website. If you are not able to activate your license using this email's activation code, call Steinberg support at any time (9AM-9PM US Central time) and we can manually activate the license for you. To change the name of your email address and other user information, you can open eLicenser Control Center. Click on the "Update user information" to update your names, addresses and the latest catalog information (eLicenser version, serial number, etc.) I'm downloading the latest version of eLicenser to use it with Cubase. In the download, it asks if I want to use the temporary license. It has also requested a activation code for the product to be used with Cubase. I'm not able to provide this code. Can you help with that? Actually, I simply have a problem because of the German language. My company has added the entire product to the eLicenser Software (Fotos.de) on our website, and we have now added many licenses for different product versions. However, we have no idea how to get the activation key, although the product is simply activated on our site.
