Some Tips and Tricks to Improve Your Gameplay in Wild Rift

Now that you have installed and launched Wild Rift on your device, you may be wondering how to get better at the game and climb the ranks. Here are some tips and tricks that can help you improve your gameplay and have more fun in Wild Rift:

- Get to know the map. The Wild Rift map is similar to the League of Legends map, but with some differences. For example, there are only two turrets per lane instead of three, and there are honeyfruit plants that restore health and mana in the river. You should also be aware of the fog of war and vision, which limit what you can see on the map. You can use wards, trinkets, and abilities to reveal hidden areas and enemies.
- Play easier champs. Wild Rift has over 60 champions to choose from, each with their own strengths and weaknesses. However, not all champions are equally easy to play. Some champions require more skill, timing, and coordination than others. If you are new to the game or want to learn the basics, you should start with easier champs that have simple abilities and mechanics. For example, Garen, Annie, Ashe, Master Yi, and Jinx are some of the beginner-friendly champions that you can try.
- Keep your champion pool small. While it is good to experiment with different champions and roles, you should also focus on mastering a few champions that suit your playstyle and preferences. By keeping your champion pool small, you can learn their abilities, combos, strengths, weaknesses, matchups, and builds more effectively. You can also perform more consistently and confidently in ranked games. Ideally, you should have one or two champions for each role that you can play well.
- Last hit every minion. Minions are the main source of gold and experience in Wild Rift. By last hitting minions, you can earn more gold and level up faster than your opponents. To last hit minions effectively, you need to time your attacks or abilities when they are low on health. You should also avoid auto-attacking minions randomly or pushing the lane too hard unless you have a good reason to do so.
- Play as a team. Wild Rift is a team-based game that requires coordination and communication with your allies. You should always try to play as a team and help each other out in fights, objectives, ganks, and rotations. You should also avoid flaming, blaming, or trolling your teammates if things go wrong. Instead, you should be positive, supportive, and constructive in chat.
